A variety of influences depressed the stock market yesterday. In some instances the reiteration of old hear arguments operated effectively. London was un pleasantly active as a seller of most of the international stocks and foreign advices in relation to the political situation renewed uneasiness. Reading was not particularly affected by the publication of a semi-official synopsis of some of the features of the proposed reorganization plan as they now stand. Rumors of possible active de-fensive action by some of the junior se-curities interests were circulated, but did not command much attention, owing to the radically unfavorable condition of the property and lack of practical equity in the stock. The decision of Justice Harian in the Western Union-Union Pacific case was again used with decided effect against the stock. None of the counsel of the company had received the text of the decision and there was consequently no official state-ment from its standpoint as to the full effect of the opinion. The decision of Attorney-general Hancock in the Tobacco Trust litigation was also improved as far as practicable by the bears. Gold engagements for to-day's steamer, aggregating $1,750,000, and well defined expectation of the shipment of at least $1,000,000 additional on Thursday, constituted another bear card attacks on Manhattan were renewed the decision in the tobacco case induced raids on all of the other industrial shares. The news that the presidents of the trunk lines and connecting roads had ratified the plan for the establishment of profitable rates and maintenance of harmony was not made public until some time after the close of business. The market was more active than on Monday with the bulk of the dealings distributed in a half dozen stocks, exceptional activity being noted in Western Union. Trading was large at the opening and a weak tone prevailed. The selling pressure was gen-eral and was directed chiefly against the industrials and international shares. The dealings during the rest of the day were on an irregularly weak range of prices. Tobacco declined to 84%c, a loss of 2 per cent. from Monday's closing, with an indifferent recovery. Leather preferred dropped an extreme 2% per cent., Western Union 2 per cent., with a light fractional rally. Louisville & Nashville and Denver & Rio Grande preferred, on foreign selling, scored a decline of 2%@2%, respectively. The closing was quiet and steady at improvements from the lowest points extending to 1 per cent. in Sugar, but in general net losses, which were material in some cases. dealings during the rest of the day were

That New Jersey Arson Case. To the Editor of the Indianapolis Journal: The Journal of the 18th inst. devotes nearly a column to a discussion of what is arson. It goes into a lengthy discussion as to the rights of the tenant to burn the property of the landlord. It is barely possible that it has missed the real point of the case in the failure to distinguish that | closing at 25%c. the suit was a criminal prosecution. "The fire was started in a room of which the tenant was a legal occupant and did not spread to other parts of the building." The kernel of New Jersey acumen lies in the latter statement, "did not spread to other parts of the building." The tenant would undoubtedly be liable for repairs. He would have to restore the room or an action for damages would lie. "Sic utere tuo ut

It was well established in Rylands vs. Fletcher that "If a man brings or uses a thing of a dangerous nature on his own land, he must keep it in at his own peril, and is liable for the consequences if it escapes and does injury to his neighbor. Of course, this man presumably started the fire to warm himself, to burn old

In the wheat pit up to noon the fluctuations were narrow. The news was generally bearish, but shorts seemed disposed to take up their profits quickly, and this, with the large purchases of cash wheat and cables about declines in consols, had a tendency to check any decline. The opening for December was 57%c, down to 57c. Trading was brisk for a time, with a downward tendency. Prices soon firmed up, however, and after noon heavy buying brought December up to the high figure of the day, 57%c. There it closed, the feeling being firm.

Complete duliness pervaded the corn pit once more, but the price was firm on account of the wet weather. The speculative trade in corn has dwindled away to the point of disappearance. May ranged from 29½c to 29½c, and closed at 29¾c sellers.

No improvement in the oats market. Trading was fully as devoid of activity as ever, and there was absolutely nothing of interest to report. May opened at 20½@ 20½c, to 20½c, and that constituted the entire range of the day. At the close it was 20½c bid.

Why the Catholic Church Takes No Notice of His Performances. New York Sun. "It ought to be known," said one who has right to speak in the case, "that the Catholic Church is in no measure and in no way responsible for the claims or performances of the individual named Schlatter, who is spoken of in the Sun as the Colorado miracle worker. I am aware that Mr. Schlatter professes to be an adherent of the Catholic Church, and I have learned that he was born in that faith in Germany, where he acquired the trade of shoemaker; but, in so far as his alleged miraculous power is concerned, the church has nothing to do with him. He has never submitted his credentials, if I may use that word, to church authority; he does not pretend to conduct his performances in the name of the church. These are ne does not pretend to conduct his performances in the name of the church. These are entirely outside of the church; he is beyond the jurisdiction of the church; he is a violator of church law; he cannot be regarded as a Catholic, for he gives no heed to the mandates of the church. He cannot have any standing in the church. The church takes no stock in him."

"Why has he not been brought under lis-cipline by the church authorities in New Mexico or Colorado?" "For the reason that they look upon him as an outsider, with whom they have noth-ing to do. They do not recognize that he belongs to the faith. There is no reason why they should notice him any more than others of his kind. There are general and definite laws of the church applicable to all such cases, and whenever any case arises under these laws, it is examined according to their prescriptions. The carefulness of the church in such cases has never slackened since its foundation. If Mr. Schlatter's socalled miracles were thought by the episcopate of New Mexico or Colorado to be worthy of attention, they would be brought under investigation there, and I do not think there would be any need of referring them

"If you were familiar with the Catholic prescriptions for the scrutiny of things that appear to be miraculous or beyond comprehension, you would know how difficult it prehension, you would know how difficult it is to practice any fraud under them. The mere circumstance that the church authorities in the regions in which Mr. Schlatter's performances are in evidence have not brought him under discipline as a factitious member of the Catholic Church, is all the proof needed that they do not take him to be either a Catholic in communion with the church or a worker of miracles. It is in this case as when the church hears of supernatural performances by Spiritualists, or natural performances by Spiritualists, or Theosophists, or Christian Scientists or mind curers; it gives no heed to them; it has its own methods, which are not those of deluded people. It does not utter a specific condemnation of every delusion that may arise from time to time. These blind eaders are not in its fold or under its ju-

"But why have not the church authorities in Colorado or New Mexico warned the Catholics there against being deceived by false miracles, while thousands of people have striven to get Schlatter to touch them, and many of them have have said they were cured by his touch?"
"But then," answered the speaker, "have you heard of any Catholics going to Mr. Schlatter for a cure? I do not suppose that any Catholic who believes in his church has joined the crowds who are said to be seeking to be cured of their diseases by this man's touch. No Catholic could do so without the consent of his priest or under the blessing of the church. He could not do so without violating his spiritual obligations, of without rendering himself liable to the restraints of the church, or without making his act known to his father confessor when he goes to confession. The exactions of Catholicity are not subject to compromise. The church watches over its children, and guides them in everything that appertains to their spiritual welfere. Any Catholic can easily find out his duty in any case."
"Anyhow." said the reporter, "most of the inhabitants of New Mexico, where Schlatter began his performances and cal ried them on for a good while, are Cath-

"That is true, and yet you may be sure that the Catholics there put no faith in his performances, and never went to him for miraculous healing. His success has been in Colorado, where Catholics are few, and where most of the inhabitants are half-believing Protestants, or unbelievers in religion, or wholly regardless of all religion. You often find that men of that kind, men who boast of their scepticism, are the most easily deceived. scepticism, are the most easily deceived the most superstitious, the readiest to accept every new wonder that comes along, more especially if it cannot be explained or exposed in five minutes. Many of the Buddhists of India who have lost faith in Buddha still believe in their fakirs. Many spiritualists who have cast off the stles' creed yet believe in spooks. 'Only one question more," said the interviewer. "How do you account for the re-ports that are sent here from Denver about Schlatter's healing powers?" "I must tell you that I am unable to account for the reports or for Mr. Schlatter, or for his powers, if he has any. All I know about them is what I have read in the papers. And I will tell you that I do not believe he has ever worked any miracles. I smile at his pretensions, are unnumbered things in the world that I cannot understand and there are but few things that I can explain, even to my own satisfaction. I was once in a dime museum, where I got so confused while looking at some of the queer performances that I had to leave the place to straighten my head. The best thing I have seen about Mr. Schlatter's deeds was um, where I got so confused in The Sun, which said it would have them brought under the inspection of science as soon as he came to New York."
